BYLC launches leadership programme

Staff Correspondent

Family and primary level education play a significant role in the development of a child as a good human being, Dhaka University vice-chancellor AAMS Arefin Siddique said on Friday while inaugurating a month-long young leadership programme at the BIAM auditorium in Dhaka.

Congratulating the enthusiastic people who vowed to do something for the betterment of society, Arefin Siddique said, "Those who are leading the country today also received education from their families."

A total of 30 students from different educational institutions will attend the leadership programme organised by the Bangladesh Young Leadership Centre.

The organisers will run the programme in three segments that will run three hours a day and six days a week.

In the first segment, the participants will learn to interact and communicate with each other by working in small groups and participating in team building exercises, said the organisers.

The participants will also learn to understand different voices and perspectives in society.

The second part consists of leadership training which will feature public speech workshops, lectures on the diagnostic framework of leadership and training on different tools and techniques to effectively and courageously exercise the act of leadership.
